Orchards love good feed as other farm crops. If there is manure to spare after the regular farm-crops have had their share, let the trees have some. It is not hot season. THE best time to kill a weed is as soon as it is born, before you can see it. When the seed has germinated, and it is just ready to break through the ground, then the least disturbance of the soil disarranges its connections and it dies in a hot suo; but if it grows until it makes roots, if it is disturbed considerably yea do not kill it; it has a hold upon the soil and It lives in spite of you.—Detroit Tribune.

GROWING GRAPES .- In the Rhine district grape vines are kept low and as near o the soil as possible, so that the heat of the sua may be reflected back upon them from the ground, and the ripening is thus carried on through the night by the heat radiated from the earth.

MY CURE FOR CABBAGE PESTS. -To prevent the worm on cabbage, also the black flea, I use the common samrtweed, by some called pepperweed, known to all farmers, growing in barn yards and en road sides. This I take green, dry it and reduce to powder and sift over the plants. I believe if the weed was boiled in water and the solution sprinked on the cabbage it would answer the same purpose.

A Berlin Gardner claims that he effectually checked the ravages of caterpillars last year by the simple expedient of sifting ashes over his vegetables when they were wet with dew. Perhaps he borrowed the plan from England, for it is an old one, and is often adopted successfully in preventing the turnip beetle devouring the young crops of the Brassica family when just appearing above the ground,-London Journal of Horticulture.

The benefits conferred by the applicaion of science to the useful arts has never been more strikingly illustrated than in the light which has been thrown upon the operations of the farm by the investigations of modern chemistry. The exact information which has been obtained as the result of these researches, forms the corner stone of successful agriculture: and while on the one hand the routine of farm life has been much lightened and systematized, so on the other, vastly improved modes of culture and products of greater value have been realized.

WHAT IS NEEDED. Bosron, Feb 13, 1871. Mr. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir—About one year since I found myself in a feeble condition from general debility. VEGETINE was strongly recommended to me by a friend who had been much benefited by its use. I procured the article, and after using several bottles, was restored to health and discontinued its use. I feel quite confident that there is no medicine superior to it for those complaints for which it is especially prepared, and would cheerfully recommend it to those who feel that they need something to restore them to perfect health.

THAT "THE SINGER" is the favorite selfe-vident as to be beyond cavil or denial. Its sales, compared with the go-carled "Popular Machines," offered for sale throughout the country, is proof of its superiority, and fully demonstrates the cause of immense sales and Sewing Machine Sales for 1875. THERE were sold by the sixteen different SEWING MACHINE COMPANIES, 528,755 Sewin Machines, of which 249,852

WERE OF THE SINGER PATENT THUS it will be seen that nearly ONE-HALF of all the Sewing Muchines sold in the year All we ask is to test THE SINGER before
